六、 課程教學設計及實施方式

(-)	This interdisciplinary program focuses on disparate critical concepts and themes to facilitate students a preliminary study of literature and film. Films and literary works explored in this course range from film adaptations of literary masterpieces, films of critical sociological, cultural, and literary concern, and the written texts of literary works proper. By guiding them into undertaking in-depth, critical analysis of representations of the visual and the verbal, this course aims to broaden students' worldview and hence their humanistic vision. It is hoped that by the end of the semester, students will acquire the comprehensive knowledge of literature and film with the aid of a thorough grasp of cultural and historical contexts; meanwhile, by analyzing literary works and their film adaptations, students may compare different ways of representations in cinematic and written texts. We hope to draw more students' interest back to literature by watching films; on the other hand, we also expect students to be more critically aware of the lure of contemporary media and therefore are able to see film adaptations of literary works as socio-cultural processes involving issues of representation, production, and consumption.

		Grading Policy:
		1. Assignments: Moodle response (35%) and oral presentation (25%): Students are required to upload their weekly response onto the Moodle platform and take notes of the literary or cinematic texts they study. The whole class will be divided into several discussion groups to discuss the themes of assigned literary or cinematic texts. 2. Final Exam (30%): A Google form in Moodle will be open for you to fill in the answers in class. There will be some multiple-choice questions asking you about the contents (important textual clues, for example) of the films you have studied in your final exam.
		Notice the following:

		You are required to have watched all the films before the final exam. If you cannot make it, you will not be qualified for taking this course. All of them are available at NTNU or NTU libraries.
		3. Attendance (10 %): It is essential to attend the class regularly. Students who are absent without leave for three times will automatically fail the course. Please register in the "Leave Section" in Moodle if you need to ask for a leave.
		4. Plagiarism: Plagiarism will be seriously punished. Those who commit plagiarism will fail the course.
(+-)	上課注意事項	1.All of the film DVDs are available at NTNU or NTU libraries. Students taking this course are expected to watch the movies before class.
		2.An important course orientation will be given in the first week. Please make sure to attend the first week's class. Those who are absent in the first week without due cause and asking for a leave will receive a 10-point deduction of their final grades.
		3.Lecture recordings may be uploaded to Moodle for students who are unable to attend the class due to some appropriate reasons (e.g. quarantine). The weekly recording will be removed from Moodle a week later.
		4.Students should conduct real-name registration when attending in-person classes. Fixed seating arrangement shall be practiced for the entire semester and social distancing of 1.5 meters should be maintained.
